Employer and industry comments/current labour market

A survey of employers who recently advertised for chiropractors was undertaken in November 2008. Nationally 48 per cent of the surveyed vacancies were filled within six weeks of advertising. This is down, from the fill rate of 57 per cent recorded in May 2008. However, the issues leading to vacancies being unfilled appear to be unchanged. There is evidence that regional employers experience greater difficulty filling vacancies and some vacancies attracted qualified chiropractors but were unfilled because applicants did not have experience with particular techniques.

Labour Market Outlook

There are no indications that the labour market for chiropractors will change significantly over the next six months.
