

Australian Government

Submission to the Australian
Fair Pay Commission
2006

28 July 2006

Table of Contents

	Page
Overview	1
Introduction	1
The macroeconomic environment	4
Issues for consideration	5
Minimum wages and employment	5
Minimum wages and the Safety Net	5
Minimum wages and productivity	6
Other responsibilities of the Commission	6
The setting of special minimum wages	6
Minimum wages for juniors	6
Minimum wages for apprentices and trainees	7
Minimum wages for employees with a disability	8
Conclusion	9
Chapter 1: Background - A new approach to setting minimum wages	11
Introduction	11
Background	11
Establishment of the Australian Fair Pay Commission	12
A safety net	14
The unemployed	14
Australian Pay and Classification Scales	15
Reviewing and setting APCSS	16
The minimum wages system	17
Work value	19
Work value in a modern economy	20
Timing and processes	21
Jurisdiction and APCS reliance	21
Juniors	25
Piece rates	27
Casual loadings	27
Chapter 2: Economic developments	29
Introduction	29
Economic outlook	29
Domestic forecasts	29
Outlook for the world economy	31
Outlook for the domestic economy	31
Key risks to the economic outlook	33
Labour market overview	34
Employment	35
Unemployment	36
Participation rate	36
Outlook	37
Disadvantaged groups in the labour market	38
Teenagers	38
Long-term unemployed	38
Jobless parents	39
Wages developments	40
Wages growth and the composition of employment	42
Do economic conditions support a case for a wage rise?	46

Conclusion	47
Chapter 3: Minimum wages and their effect on employment	49
Introduction	49
Economic theory	49
Empirical literature	50
The minimum wage ‘bite’	50
International evidence	52
Heterogeneity of low paid workers	55
Fallacy of the inflated denominator	55
Australian evidence	56
Economic modelling	57
MONASH model	58
Treasury Macroeconomic model	59
Modelling by Econtech	59
Alternative approaches	61
International bodies	63
Conclusion	64
Chapter 4: The task of reducing unemployment	67
Introduction	67
Labour market experience over the past 15 years	67
Conclusion	71
Chapter 5: The impact on regional Australia	73
Introduction	73
Regional labour market outcomes	73
Metropolitan and non-metropolitan areas	73
ABS labour force regions	74
The causes of regional labour market disparities	79
The regional labour market adjustment mechanism	79
Structural and regional specific factors	82
The regional impact of recent improvements in Australia’s terms of trade	83
Modelling the regional impact of increases in minimum wages	85
Conclusion	87
Appendix A.5: The impact on regional Australia	89
Labour market disadvantage at Statistical Local Area (SLA)	91
Econtech results	94
Chapter 6: The impact of a minimum wage on the welfare of the low paid	97
Introduction	97
Income distribution in Australia	98
The tax welfare transfer system – re-distributing income to poorer households	101
Relationship between income distribution and the minimum wage	103
Distribution of low paid workers among households	105
Characteristics and distribution of the unemployed	109
Relative poverty and income mobility – the importance of being in work	110
Conclusion	112
Appendix A.6	113
Data sources for Tables 6.2, A6.1, A6.2 and A6.3	116
Chapter 7: Wage transitions and stepping stones	117
Introduction	117
Wage transitions for low-paid workers – do low-paid jobs provide stepping	117

stones to higher paid jobs?	120
Wage transitions for the unemployed	120
Evidence from DEWR Administrative Studies	122
Household joblessness	124
Transfer payments, earnings and incentives to work	126
Reservation wages	129
Conclusion	130
Appendix A.7: Low pay employees	133
Methodology	133
Calculation of wage rates for low paid employees	133
Calculating wage transitions for low paid employees	134
Appendix B.7: Reservation wages	137
Methodology	137
Willingness to work	140
Explanatory factors	140
Summary of the analysis of reservation wages	142
Chapter 8: Productivity and workplace bargaining	145
Introduction	145
Productivity gains of the 1990s	145
Relationship between productivity and bargaining	148
The benefits of strong productivity growth	149
Encouraging future productivity growth	150
Conclusion	153
Chapter 9: Minimum wages for junior employees	155
Introduction	155
Background	156
The structure of minimum wages for juniors that was derived from State and federal awards	156
Definition	156
Junior employment population	156
1999 census of junior rates provisions in federal awards	157
2006 survey of junior rates provisions in representative sample of federal awards	158
The history of the treatment of junior rates by wage fixing bodies	160
The rationale for junior rates	161
Theory	162
AIRC's Junior Rates Inquiry	163
Assessment of economic research from the AIRC's Junior Rates Inquiry	164
Significant negative employment effects if junior rates are abolished	164
The experience of the UK Low Pay Commission	167
OECD findings	168
Other academic research	169
Characteristics of the youth labour market	169
Requirements of the WR Act in relation to minimum wages for juniors	171
Functions of the Commission	171
Provisions in the WR Act that guide the exercise of these powers	171
The setting of special FMWs	172
How the Commission may perform its functions in relation to junior rates	173
The establishment of special FMWs for juniors	173
Should a special FMW be established at this time?	173

If a special FMW is established, what form should it take?	174
Should a special FMW scale apply to all juniors, or only to those who are APCS-free?	174
How should any special FMW be structured, and what level of rates should it prescribe?	175
Western Australia	175
Queensland	176
How was the Queensland junior minimum wage scale for award-free juniors established?	177
South Australia	178
AIRC's Junior Rates Inquiry selection of federal awards	179
Adjustment of junior wage rates in preserved APCSs	180
Conclusion	181
Appendix A9: DEWR's 44 indicative awards	183
Appendix B9: The experience of the UK Low Pay Commission	185
First report of the UK Low Pay Commission May 1998	185
Second Report of the Low Pay Commission February 2000	186
Third Report of the Low Pay Commission June 2001 (Volume Two)	187
Fourth report of the UK Low Pay Commission March 2003	187
Protecting Young Workers - UK Low Pay Commission Report 2004	188
UK Low Pay Commission Report February 2005	189
UK Low Pay Commission Report March 2006	190
Appendix C9: OECD findings	193
OECD submissions to the UK Low Pay Commission and Ireland National Minimum Wage Commission 1997	193
OECD Employment Outlook 1998	194
OECD background report – Giving young people a good start	195
OECD Employment Outlook 2006	195
OECD working paper - Bassanini and Duval	195
Appendix D9: Academic research – youth employment and minimum wages	199
OECD countries	199
European studies	199
United States studies	200
New Zealand studies	201
Other Australian research	203
Australian Council of Trade Union's research – support for junior rates	203
Other international research	203
Ghellab – rationale for junior rates	203
Yuen – youth are a heterogeneous group	204
Appendix E9: Youth labour market	205
Introduction	205
Changes in the teenage labour market	206
Declining full-time employment	206
The 'at risk' disadvantaged teenage groups	211
Group 1: those not participating in either full-time education or employment	211
Group 2: those in employment but with low levels of skills and educational attainment	212
Chapter 10: Minimum wages for apprentices and trainees	217
Introduction	217

Background	218
Australian Apprenticeships	218
Apprentices	220
The current structure of apprentice minimum wages in preserved APCSs that were derived from State and federal awards	220
Full-time apprentices	220
Survey of apprentice wages	221
Part-time apprentices	223
School-based apprentices	223
Adult apprentices	223
State apprentice wages	224
The historical development of apprentice minimum wages	225
The development of minimum wages for full-time apprentices	225
The development of minimum wages for part-time apprenticeships and school-based apprenticeships	227
Determination of adult apprentice wages	228
Trainees	229
The structure of current minimum wages in preserved APCSs for trainees that was derived from State and federal awards	229
State arrangements	231
The history of the development of minimum wages for traineeships	232
Development of the Australian Traineeship System	232
Measures taken to improve and expand traineeships	233
The Australian Vocational Training System and Career Start Traineeships	233
Establishment and development of the National Training Wage Award 1994	234
Part-time and school-based traineeships	234
Certificate IV traineeships	236
How training wages need to be set to ensure competitiveness in the labour market	236
The rationale for training wages - human capital theory	237
Training theory	238
Adjustment for training time	238
Conclusion	239
The competitiveness of apprentices in the labour market at current wage levels	239
Conclusion	241
Labour Market developments for apprentices and trainees	241
Skill shortages in traditional trades – what is happening?	244
Requirements of the WR Act in relation to minimum wages for apprentices and trainees	246
Functions of the Commission	246
Provisions in the WR Act that guide the exercise of these powers	247
Filling gaps in minimum wage coverage for apprentices and trainees	247
The setting of special FMWs	249
Exercise of the Fair Pay Commission’s powers in relation to apprentices and trainees	250
Apprentices	251
Adjusting basic periodic rates contained in APCSs	251
Full-time apprentices	251
Part-time apprentices	254
School-based apprentices	254

Other proposals to adjust apprentice wages	256
Increasing minimum wages for apprentices, including on the basis of schooling	257
The introduction of minimum wages for adult apprentices	262
Competency based wage progression for apprentices	264
Metal Industry Award	265
Queensland State jurisdiction	267
ACCI proposals	268
Council of Australian Governments	268
Filling in gaps in coverage of minimum wages for apprentices	269
Full-time apprentices	269
Part-time apprentices	271
School-based apprentices	272
Establishment of special FMWs	273
Trainees	274
Adjusting basic periodic rates contained in APCSs	274
Full-time trainees	275
Part-time trainees	276
School-based trainees	277
Trainees undertaking a certificate IV traineeship	278
Filling in gaps in coverage of minimum wages for trainees	278
Full-time junior and adult trainees	279
Gaps in the range of traineeships covered by APCSs	280
Gaps in the coverage of junior traineeship rates Case study – the Building and Construction industry	284
Part-time trainees	286
School-based trainees	288
What a special APCS should include	288
Establishment of special FMWs	289
Conclusion	290
Appendix A10: Australia’s national training system and Australian Apprenticeships	292
Main features of the national training system	292
Brief history of State and Territory training delivery	293
Employment-based training in Australia	295
Outline of recent Australian Government initiatives that support Australian Apprenticeships	295
Competency based training in Australian Apprenticeships	296
Appendix B10: DEWR survey awards containing apprenticeship provisions	299
Appendix C10: Survey results – apprentice rates in federal awards	301
Appendix D10: The use of the allocative principle by industrial tribunals	311
Appendix E10: The development of minimum wages for part-time apprenticeships and school-based apprenticeships	315
Federal awards	315
Universal access in Queensland jurisdiction	317
Other State jurisdictions	318
Appendix F10: The development of minimum wages for adult apprentices	319
Metal industry decisions	319
Vehicle and Vehicle Repair industry decisions	320
Adult apprentice rates in Western Australia	321

Adult apprentice rates in South Australia	323
Adult apprentice rates in Queensland	323
Adult apprentice rates in New South Wales	324
Adult apprentice rates in Tasmania	325
Appendix G10: Key initiatives the Commonwealth has introduced to alleviate skills shortages	327
Introducing a New National Training System	327
National Skills Shortages Strategy	328
Council of Australian Governments Initiatives	328
Industry Training Strategies Programme	330
Initiatives to directly increase apprentice numbers	330
Measures to directly assist apprentices	331
Skilled migration	331
Appendix H10: Extract from Workplace Relations Amendment (Work Choices) Act 2005 – section 552 pay for school-based apprentices	333
Appendix I10: Extract from Workplace Relations Amendment (Work Choices) Act 2005 – section 555 pay for school-based trainees	335
Appendix J10: Extract from transcript – explanation of process of allocating training packages to wage levels	337
Appendix K10: Model part-time apprenticeship clause endorsed by the Australian Industrial Relations Commission – 6 March 2000	341
Chapter 11: Minimum wages for employees with a disability	343
Introduction	343
Background	344
The structure of minimum wages for employees with a disability that were derived from State and federal awards	344
Minimum wages for employees with a disability in open employment	344
The Supported Wage System (SWS) in awards	344
‘Slow worker’ permits	345
Minimum wages for employees with a disability in business services	346
The history of the past treatment of minimum wages for employees with a disability	347
The development of the SWS for employees with a disability in open employment	347
The Ronalds report	347
The Dunoon report	348
Industrial relations arrangements for the SWS	348
Legislative underpinnings	349
Provision of access to the SWS in State systems	350
SWS participation	350
The history of industrial relations regulation in business services	351
Government reforms to business services	351
Agreement to vary and extend the LHMU Award	353
How minimum wages for employees with a disability need to be set to ensure they are competitive in the labour market	354
Requirements of the WR Act in relation to minimum wages for employees with a disability	355
Provisions in the WR Act that guide the exercise of these powers	356
The setting of special FMWs	356
Filling gaps in minimum wage coverage for employees with a	357

disability	358
How the Commission might perform its functions	358
Open employment	358
The gap filling function	358
The SWS was always intended to be extended to all areas of open employment	359
SWS Evaluation	359
Conclusion	360
Establishment of special FMWs for employees with a disability in open employment	360
APCS-free employees with a disability unable to earn the full rate of pay	361
APCS-free employees with a disability able to earn the full rate of pay	361
Adjustment of minimum wages for employees with a disability in open employment	361
Business Services	362
Further Wage Assessment Tools	363
Coverage provisions of an APCS for employees of business services	364
Mandatory use of the SWS is inappropriate for business services	365
Conclusion	368
Open employment	368
Business services	369
Appendix A11: Supported wage system model clause	371
Appendix B11: Wage provisions of the Australian Liquor, Hospitality and Miscellaneous Workers Union Supported Employment (Business Enterprises) Award 2001	375
Appendix C11: Industry agreed wage assessment tools for inclusion in the Business services APCS	379
Appendix D11: Business services using a wage assessment tool not recognized by the business services APCS	381